TAFT ANNOUNCES HIS POSITION ON LABOR QUESTION

Believes That Organized Labor Like Organized Capital Accomplishes Good

Government Ownership is No Panacea.

TALKS FOR HEARST SERVICE

Washington, March 23.—Hearst papers say William Howard Taft, who is the most widely spoken of as the Republican nominee for president, has given to the Hearst news service a remarkable interview, in which he freely outlines the policies on which he will appeal to the voters of the United States if nominated. His observations dwell particularly on the important issues of labor, the corporations, the tariff and the railroad situation.

In reply to a question as to the report that he was unfriendly to organized labor, Secretary Taft said:

"That is absolutely untrue. My position with reference to capital and labor has never changed.

"The organization of capital into corporations, with the position of advantage which this gave in a dispute with single laborers over wages, made it absolutely necessary for labor to unite, to maintain itself.

"Like corporations, labor unions do great good and much evil. The more conservatively and intelligently conducted they are, the more benefits they confer upon their members.

Believes in Labor.

"The more completely they yield to the dominion of those among them who are temperate in expression and violent and lawless in their methods, the more evil they do to themselves and to society."

"Then you believe in the organization of labor?" was asked.

"I do," was the quick response.

"The effect of the organization of labor on the whole has been highly beneficial in securing better terms for employment for the whole laboring community. The existence of labor unions steadies wages."

"What the capitalist, who is the employer of labor, must face, is the organization of labor as a permanent condition of the industrial world. It has come to stay."

"What is the right of a labor union in respect to strikes?"

Have Right to Strike.

"They have the right to leave the employ of their employer in a body in order to impose upon him as great an inconvenience as possible to induce him to come to their terms. They

CHARGED WITH ROBBERY A GUEST WITH ONE HAND.

Charged with robbery, Allie Morton and Jim Edwards, colored, were arrested this morning by Patrolmen Roush and Brennan near the market house. Foster Bates, a one-armed negro, was with Allie last night, and it is alleged that he reached in Foster's pocket and lifted out his wallet containing $20. Bates saw his pocket-book fall and picked it up and put it in his pocket. This morning he looked and $15 was missing. The patrolmen were notified and they learned the two were spending money freely. When Bates went to see the Morton woman about the missing money, Jim Edwards drove him away from the house, and he was arrested for having a hand in the robbery.

CANAAN TROUBLE ALMOST FATAL TO ONE PARTICIPANT

Hurley Rutledge and Andy Amos negroes, fell out over a crap game in Canaan Sunday afternoon and in a desperate encounter Rutledge stabbed Amos eight times, but none of the wounds is necessarily fatal. Constable A. C. Shelton was summoned by someone living near where the trouble occurred, but when he reached the scene all had fled except Amos, who was lying in a pool of his own blood. County Physician L. E. Young was summoned and dressed the wounds. Amos was stabbed six times in the shoulder and once in each leg. Rutledge made his escape and has not been arrested.

The place where the trouble occurred is a notorious rendezvous in Canaan and has been the Night Riders Burn Residence of Calloway County Planter While Family is Sleeping Early Sunday.

Richard Spann and His Family Almost Cremated Before They Discover Fire—Raids Near Louisville.

While the family of Richard Spann, a farmer of Calloway county near Beech Grove and the Graves county line, were sleeping about 2 o'clock Sunday morning, incendiaries set fire to the residence, the stable and empty tobacco barn, and not until the roar of flames and the burning brands from the roof began dropping in did any of them awaken to their danger. It was with the utmost difficulty that Mr. Spann succeeded in getting his wife and children out, and a few minutes later the structure, which had been set afire at one corner, fell in and all their clothing and household goods were lost, all valued with the house at about $2,000.

As the family rushed out they were met by the glare from the burning stable, and the screams of the maddened horses imprisoned within. On another side of the lot the empty tobacco barn was a glow of embers.

Mr. Spann has not raised any tobacco for several years, but announced his intention of raising a crop this year. He did not join the association.

There were no shots fired by the incendiaries, and their work was carried on quietly so as not to arouse any of the sleeping inmates. It is believed they intended to burn the inmates to death.

Near Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., March 23. (Special.)—Night rider warnings were posted at Chestnut Hill, in Shelby county, 18 miles east of Louisville, and at Pitt's Point in Bullitt county, twenty miles south. In both instances growers were warned not to raise any crop and are threatened with destruction of property if they failed to heed the warning.

A party of 'day riders' rode through Knob creek section of Bullitt county, 14 miles south of Louisville, and examined all the tobacco beds. They did no damage.

At Eddyville.

Eddyville, Ky., March 23. (Special.)—One hundred night riders rode into the town Saturday night and fired a number of shots in the air and rode away without any damage.

At Grand Rivers.

Grand Rivers, Ky., March 23. (Special.)—A number of growers have received warning not to raise any tobacco.

REFUGEES FROM BIRMINGHAM, GOING SOUTH UNDER CONTRACT TO WORK THERE

Colored People, Who Were Driven Out by Night Riders Find New Homes.

Refugees from Birmingham, Marshall county, who fled for fear of night riders, and came to Paducah, have found work in Mississippi and J. M. Baird, of Greenwood, was in the city today engaging them to work in the south, offering them contracts and their fare. About 75, some of them in whole families, came to Paducah, and they were without food or money or friends. Mr. Baird had been in communication with authorities about the hands, and when these refugees came to Paducah, Mr. Baird was immediately notified that he probably could get hands here now. Many have accepted his offer of work.

THREE THOUSAND DOLLAR FIRE ON SOUTH SECOND ST.

Paducah Harness and Saddlery Company Severely Damaged by Big Blaze.

Fireman Have Hard Fight in Business District.

MEN DO EXCELLENT WORK

Fire was discovered in the third floor of the Paducah Harness and Saddlery company, 107 South Second street, last night at 10:05 o'clock and damage amounting to about $3,000 was done. The fire started in the third floor, which was vacant, and had begun burning the second floor, which is the workshop of the company, when the alarm was turned in.

When Fire Chief Wood arrived he had the four companies at the fire to guard the flames from catching other buildings, as the annex of the Hotel Belvedere was in danger. The wind blew the flames to the east, and they leaped across the street to the market house and many bystanders thought the entire block was doomed. The aerial ladder was raised and the firemen entered the third floor and fought the fire to advantage.

The Paducah Harness and Saddlery company has been in business a little over a year, and John Birch, the owner, estimated his loss at about $3,000 with $2,900 insurance. The building is owned by the American-German National bank, and its loss is estimated at $500. Mr. Birch this morning said that it was uncertain whether he would re-establish the company again. The men employed lost about $200 worth of tools with out any insurance.

The adjoining buildings were not damaged. A door opened from the second floor to the store of Lou Allenberg & company, and James Buchanan, colored, was sleeping near the door. When he was awakened by a pet dog pulling at the cover, the flames were shooting above his head, and the smoke had almost stifled him.

The firemen did splendid work in confining the blaze to the building, and most of the loss will come from the damage by water that was thrown on the stock on the first floor. The fire was extinguished in about an hour.

MAYOR SMITH LEADS RAID SUNDAY NIGHT, CONCLUDING CRUSADE HE HAS INSTITUTED AGAINST ALL THE FORMS OF LAW BREAKING.

"If the only way to convince certain people that I am in earnest, is to put them in jail, I shall certainly put them there if I can," declared Mayor James P. Smith this morning. "I told everybody when I was elected mayor that I would have the law enforced, if I never succeeded in doing anything else, and I shall." And his clenched fist came down hard on his knee. "I gave orders to the police to close up disorderly houses, stop them selling liquor, to stop gambling and stop Sunday selling. That was about the first thing I did after I was inaugurated, and those things are going to be stopped." He struck his knee in the same place, and if some people had seen the expression of his face, they would have understood how the mayor impressed those politicians at Frankfort that he was in earnest about the second class city charter.

"Think of you and me, decent citizens of Paducah with children, purchasing a home, and then some bawdy house keeper settling down next door to you, plying her trade under your very eye, selling liquor without a license and flaunting vice in the faces of your children. That sort of thing has got to be stopped!"

It will be stopped, too, was the opinion of those to whom the mayor was addressing himself.

CIRCUIT JUDGE REED'S OFFICE RIFLED BY THIEVES LAST SATURDAY NIGHT

Drawers Searched and Papers Scattered All Over Floor—No Money in Office.

Judge William Reed's office in the Columbia building was entered Saturday night by some unknown person, whose object is not known, but so far no papers nor anything else has been missed. It will be hard to tell what was taken till occasion calls for the papers. The object of the burglary could not have been money, as Judge Reed never leaves money at his office.

The janitor of the building said that the door to Mr. Reed's office was open when he went in to clean up Sunday morning and the drawers of two desks were open and the papers in them were scattered on the floor and on the desks and everything in the room was muddled up. Judge Reed said he thought that he locked the door when he left his office Saturday afternoon, but he might have been mistaken. No clue to the identity of the thief can be found.

TAFT IS GAINING STEADILY IN RACE FOR NOMINATION

Washington, March 23.—Twenty-four votes were added to the list of delegates elected and instructed to vote for Taft, at the Republican national convention in June as a result of conventions held during the past week. Forty delegates in all were elected and in addition to the twenty-four instructed for Mr. Taft eight delegates were chosen in conventions in Illinois instructed for Speaker Cannon, and eight selected in different states were uninstructed.

Up to this time 224 delegates have been elected to the Republican national convention, of which Secretary Taft has 144 instructed votes, 26 have been instructed for Vice-President Fairbanks, 8 instructed for Speaker Cannon, 18 delegates are uninstructed and 28 are contested.

These delegates have been elected and assigned as follows: Alabama, 8 contested; Illinois, Cannon 8; Indiana, Fairbanks 26; Iowa, Taft 22; Kentucky, contested 2; Louisiana, contested 4; Maryland, Taft 4; Michigan, Taft 2; Missouri, Taft 24; contested 6; Nebraska, Taft 16; North Carolina, Taft 2; Ohio, Taft 36; contested 2; Oklahoma, Taft 10; uninstructed 2; Tennessee, Taft 4; contested 2; Virginia, Taft 2; uninstructed 8; New Mexico, Taft 2; Philippines, Taft 2. Totals—Taft, 144; Fairbanks, 26; Cannon, 8; uninstructed 18; contested, 28.

The notable gains of the Taft forces during the past week were the four delegates at large from the state of Iowa and scattering votes in Kansas, North Carolina, Ohio, Virginia and New Mexico. The result in Iowa was in keeping with the predictions made by the managers of the Taft campaign that their candidate would receive the endorsement of the Iowa Republican state convention.

SUNDAY SELLING.

SELLING WITHOUT LICENSE.

Theobald Peters, two warrants, three druggists, Eight disorderly houses, Theo. Peters, restaurant keeper, Eleventh street and Broadway. Lucile Thompson, Ida Chesterfield, Helen Westlake, Minnie Brown. DISORDERLY HOUSES, Ten women, including Annie Cox, Ella Howe, and another one, of Kentucky avenue beyond Ninth street. Lucile Thompson, Ida Chesterfield, Helen Westlake, Minnie Brown.

In the absence of Chief of Police James Collins, who was laid up with a severe attack of tonsillitis, Mayor James P. Smith led a raid on G. A. Chandler's saloon, Ninth street and Kentucky avenue, last night about 10 o'clock and arrested Chandler on two charges of Sunday selling, and the charge of conducting a gambling house. Joe Croal, alleged to be the man who "sets up the game," was also arrested. Participating in the raid were City Solicitor James Campbell, Jr., and Detectives Moore, Bailey and Gourieux. The paraphernalia of the house was found in an upstairs room and confiscated.

The raid was the last event in a quiet investigation, which the mayor has conducted since Saturday, March 14, through two Pinkerton detectives, D. G. McDonald and Charles Cook.

Their work has resulted in the swearing out of warrants against the keepers of houses of ill fame, three of whom will be haled before Circuit Judge Reed for violating his injunction against conducting disorderly houses on Kentucky avenue; warrants against eight keepers of houses of ill fame for selling liquor without a city license; warrants against three druggists for selling liquor, and several against Theobald Peters, who has been arrested before and fined on the charge of conducting a blind tiger at Eleventh street and Broadway.

One of the druggists actually sold whisky in a bottle to a detective the afternoon of the day he was fined in police court for Sunday selling. There are more than thirty warrants all told, some of the defendants having more than one count against them.

Mayor Smith's office this morning smelled like an apothecary shop, and his desk was littered with bottles of vari-colored and malodorous liquors, all labeled with the name of the seller and the date purchased. Mayor Smith considers it a dead open and shut proposition against the defendants.

The Raid.

Chief of Police Collins has been made a butt by uninformed people this morning until he is sore. He was expected to lead the raid, but he had a sore throat. Under direction of Mayor Smith, City Solicitor Campbell called the chief by telephone and said there was something wanted of him. The chief said if it was not emphatically important he would rather not leave the house on account of his condition. Mr. Campbell couldn't afford to state the business over the telephone and said he would turn it over to Lieutenant Tom Potter, which he did.

Then he and the mayor with the three detectives went to Ninth and Kentucky avenue, where the Pinkerton men said they played until 2:30 o'clock Sunday morning and bought

IN JAPAN

The Funny Things One Sees in

By
MARSHALL P. WILDER

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Japan compels a more rigorous examination at her various ports of entry than any other country. China makes no examination whatever, perhaps on the principle that it is difficult to sweeten a bad egg.

All holders of official positions in Japan are obliged to wear European dress, and the little Japs who boarded our steamer looked, in their long, green coats, elaborately ornamented, like schoolboys in their fathers' clothes. They are very important little people, you must know; but one of these came to grief in a manner speedy as it was unexpected.

Everything is so neat and clean in Japan, it looks as if somebody had got up before breakfast to sweep and dust the whole country. Prince Haseba, in an after-dinner speech at Spokane, said: "If you should visit a Japanese house you would be obliged to remove your shoes at the doorway. Japanese floors are beautifully kept. I know of some houses where 30 or 40 servants have no other duty than the polishing of the floors."

And Japan is the land of unrealities. The whole country is a toy shop. Everything is small. The horses are all ponies; the chickens bantams; the dogs small and shy—with apologetic manners—they wouldn't presume to bark at your heels without first asking permission; the oysters are about as large as a quarter; clams no larger than a dime; bananas not more than four or five inches long; and oranges about the size of ladyapples. Yes, everything is small. I never felt so much at home in my life.

Japanese art has had many admirers and many detractors. The latter have likened their china, sprawling with dragons and alive with grinning faces, to a fit of the jim-jams; their sunflowers to jellyfish and their chrysanthemums to cartwheels.

Its admirers claim that all you have to do is to study up its symbols, and then go ahead. But it strikes me that by the time you've learned the symbols it would be time to die. For instance, when a Japanese artist draws a picture of an April evening, a dyspeptic moon, a nightingale and a couple of plum trees, and asks you its meaning, I'll wager that if you stood first on one foot and then on the other for two mortal hours you couldn't give the fellow an answer. It's dollars to doughnuts you couldn't tell the nightingale from a fishhawk, and you couldn't tell what he was doing on the plum tree, or on the moon—it don't matter which—if they gave you the whole business—the hawk, the plum tree, the moon and the April evening—to take home to your wife for a birthday present. For, my dear fellowman, that picture means happiness! yes, happiness. And if you can't see the artist's meaning, and what's more to the point—get your wife to see it, you'd better stay right in the artist's studio and—

But you won't! You'll rush straight home with the picture under your arm, and you'll rush up to your wife and, in an insane endeavor to expatiate on the complex beauties of the thing, you'll say:

"Look, Maria! just see this! A present for your birthday—didn't forget you, did I? Here you are—great! Look at the willow moon, and the nightingale sky, and the plum-hawk—"

"And then she'll burst into tears, and cry: 'I knew it! I knew it! I've seen it coming! Oh, I knew it!'"

"Know what, for heaven's sake?"

"That you'd begin to see things! Stopping off at that corner nights has done it—I knew it would!—A plum-hawk! Oh, Archibald! that you should come to this! Oh, oh!"

"And there you are!—hysterics; the telephone; the doctor; and, let us hope, a 'quick curtain,' as they say at the theater."

You prop the easel bell on your knee and thus apostrophize it: "You call yourself a moon, do you? Why, a half-baked soda biscuit is a queen to you! And you're a nightingale, are you? Why, you splay-footed, wry-neck, hollow-back, shark-nose nightingale! a setting hen with the wind-eckles is a bird of paradise to you! What did that plum-hawk mean?"

with his infernal 'symbols' mean by letting me in $25 for this? Yes, $25! and what's the result? Maria throwing fits, and the doctor's bill another twenty-five, and nothing to show for the fifty but this dumbasted Japanese brain storm!

"A symbol of happiness, eh? Well, it hasn't brought much happiness to my home! A plum tree! Looks more like a gooseberry bush. I'll bet the plums on it would sour a barrel of molasses!"

"Patience," said that ass of a billkins, "is sometimes indicated by a spray of cherry blossoms." Well, I've seen it indicated round the 17th of March by a sprig of shamrock, and more times round the Fourth of July by a red, white and blue rosette, but nobody needed an interpreter in either case to tell what they were the 'symbol' of.

"Grace and quietness are indicated by the willow tree and the swallow, eh? Very well; I admit the willow tree. For gracefulness she's all to the good. But the swallow for quietness! Well, I've seen some swallows that wouldn't go in that class—not for nicks. One swallow don't make a summer, but two will get away with a whisky-straight in a second and a half; and three more will make a man's tongue go like a mill-clapper, while three more will bust up all the quietness left over from a generation of country Sabbaths."

"And this little game cock perched on a drum signifies good government? Well, that's a stretch of imagination with a vengeance! Looks more like an arrow on a pancake-griddle. Good government, eh? I reckon they don't feed any over there, or they'd get something bigger than his drumsticks for a symbol. His purple ribs hardly looks equal to the job. I should say scratching worms in the back yard was more in his line."

"Well, I've had an alcoholic sufficiency of Japanese art; my reputation for sobriety with my wife is gone to the four winds; I'm fifty out of pocket, and nothing—absolutely nothing—to show for it but you! you brain-twisted, colicky, jaundiced paranoiac!"

"It's the furnace fire for yours!"

On the other hand, no style of art is so fascinating to occidental minds. The daintiness of conception, the charm of color, the spring-time freshness of atmosphere that pervades each and every effort of the oriental workman possesses a charm.

As I have said, the scheme must be studied, the symbols learned; but to the dilettante this is ever a wellspring of pleasure, and one that will never go dry.

"The system of threes" or of "ones," once learned, captivates the fancy—"or things artistic are nothing if not fanciful in this oriental land—and holds the imagination in spite of oneself. The art-etiquette, so to speak, of a Japanese interior is enchanting, when one has learned it. There is only one bunch of flowers—sometimes only a single expressive blossom—in a room. There is but one picture. But this oneness must be at just such a time and in just such a place. Can you not understand why? Love is not always responsive to love's demands. Solitude, at times, is sweeter and more to be desired. So the picture is hung; the flower placed.

Every flower has a meaning. Certain flowers must never be seen together. Certain others must never be seen apart. Then, again, everything goes in threes—blossoms, boughs, or sprays. Even furniture has a meaning. The details of this etiquette are endless and, to the occidental mind, bewildering unless one "has imagination," or at least an esthetic sense to which its poetic features can appeal.

In the matter of coloring alone Japanese art leads the world; the secret is their own. Their slides, etc., notably those by Kimbel, Japan's greatest colorist, are unsurpassed by any heretofore attempted.

Though Japan is the land of beautiful bric-a-brac, none is ever displayed. The precious vase, rich with gorgeous lacquer; the picture, beautiful with poetic symbols; the carving, that has taken years of patient cunning to create, these are never displayed on wall or cabinet, but locked away in safe or storeroom to be brought out as a special honor to guest or visitor whose coming their host wishes to celebrate with the highest rites of eastern hospitality.

"If we had our precious treasures always before our eyes," they say, "they would then become too common, and we should tire of them, and that must never be!"

Poetic Bridegroom—"I could sit here forever, gazing into your eyes and listening to the wash of the ocean." Practical Bride—"Oh, that reminds me, darling, we have not paid our laundry bill yet."—Town and Country.

PORTLAND, MAINE, CHILD

III. Weak and Emaciated, Restored to Health by Vinol.

Mr. J. W. Flagg, of Portland, Me., writes: "Our little daughter, six years of age, after a severe attack of the measles, which developed into pneumonia, was left pitifully thin, weak and emaciated. She had no appetite, and her stomach was so weak it could not retain food. She lay in this condition for weeks, and nothing the doctor prescribed did a bit of good, and we were beginning to think she would never recover."

"At this time we commenced to give her Vinol, and the effect was marvelous. The doctor was amazed at her progress, and when we told him we were giving her Vinol, he replied, 'It is a fine remedy, keep it up.' We did so and she recovered her health and strength months before the doctor said she would."

The reason Vinol accomplishes such results, when everything else fails, is because it is a cod liver preparation made by a scientific, extractive and concentrating process from fresh cods' livers, combining with peptonate of iron all the medicinal, healing, body-building elements of cod liver oil, but no oil. When the powers of life are low Vinol restores the whole digestive system to a normal condition and makes it possible for the daily food to nourish the body as nature intended.

For this reason there is nothing equal to Vinol to create strength for the aged, the weak and run-down and convalescent. Try it on our guarantee. W. B. McPherson, Druggist, Paducah, Ky.

TOO LATE

OPERATION FAILS TO RELIEVE
W. L. ADAMS.

Prominent Graves County Farmer
Dies at Riverside Hospital From Appendicitis.

Mr. W. L. Adams, a prominent farmer of Viola, Graves county, died at Riverside hospital Saturday night at 10 o'clock after an operation for appendicitis. He was brought to Paducah Thursday night and was in a critical condition when the institution was reached and the disease had progressed so far that the operation failed to relieve him. Mr. Adams was one of the most prominent and substantial farmers in Graves county. Besides his wife and five children he leaves a father, mother, seven brothers and three sisters. The burial was at Mt. Pleasant cemetery yesterday afternoon.

A Higher Health Level.

"I have reached a higher health level since I began using Dr. King's New Life Pills," writes Jacob Springer of West Franklin, Maine. "They keep my stomach, liver and bowels working just right." If these pills disappoint you on trial, money will be refunded at all druggists. 25c.

Large Hands and Feet.

It is said that Disraeli was prouder of his small hands than of all his great mental accomplishments. This was presumably because they were badges of aristocracy in their evidence that he had not been brought up to labor, and he worshiped aristocracy. And small feet of the same character—evidences that the possessor did not go barefoot when a child. Generations of carefully shod children of the nobility developed this characteristic of those of "gentle blood," as distinguished from the commonality. But such proof of superiority were not meekly endured. In due time brainy commoners discovered that the "artistic hand" was not small, but long and slender; and then came the athletic multitude, who scorn small hands and feet as evidences of effeminacy.

It has been basely insinuated, however, that girls with large hands and feet usually go in for athletics in order to account for their extremities, but that is a problem that calls for Sherlock Holmes. Probably the average woman either envies or feels akin to that happy miss of whom it was written:

Her feet beneath her petticoat
Like little mice stole in and out.

But the ranks of those who take pride in artistic or athletic hands and feet are finding allies in the aristocracy of honest labor, which has made "generous" hands and feet recognized insignia of merit in the literature of this country and of Europe.—Indianapolis Star.

Grape-Nuts food is made of Wheat and Barley, in large 10 lb. loaves which are first baked, then sliced and again baked until rock hard. The slices are then ground into the granules called Grape-Nuts.

The long baking, changes the starch of the cereals to a form of sugar which is easily digested and quickly absorbed by even a child.

It affords ideal nourishment for all ages—from infancy to maturity; for all conditions—from the invalid to the athlete.

The Splendid New Serial Story

Satan Sanderson

Satan Sanderson is the true embodiment of the requisites that make a really great story. It gives the reader a look into a little world of action where all of the emotions that make or mar life—and lives—are set in swift, exciting play—one against the other. Incident follows incident with quick succession; and a vivid panorama of intrigue, mystery, love and strange adventure kindles the interest to the fusing point.

Written in a charming style, brilliant in coloring, picturesque in background, faithful in characterization and intensely dramatic, with stirring climax, Satan Sanderson is by all odds the best story of the year.

Daily Thought.

"There always are few friends to mount the loss of the man who made no enemies."

The anarchist organs must begin playing national airs, or stop their noise.

By all means provide a business course in the high school next year. It will attract fifty per cent more boys to the high school, and confer a lasting benefit on poor boys, who will appreciate the start.

The sooner everybody learns that Mayor James P. Smith is on the square in what he says, means to do what is best for Paducah, and doesn't care a rap about the political effect of his policies, the sooner they will get in harmony with this administration.

The Kentucky State Journal says: "Iowa Republicans instructed its delegates to vote for Taft first, last and all the time. There is nothing in the future so sure than that Taft will be the Republican nominee for the presidency. The Fairbanks adherents are wasting time. Better try to get in the Taft band wagon before it is too late."

BRYAN ON CORPORATIONS.

According to Mr. Bryan's own distinction between a natural person and an artificial person—a corporation was "created to make money"—the corporation ought to be given special privileges by the government. The trouble with Mr. Bryan is that he has been playing a one-sided game so long he can't see everything in front of him at once.

A corporation is created to enable a number of men to accomplish what one alone, or all disconnectedly, could not do. Only through an organization, capable of acting as a legal entity, of suing and being sued, can big industrial and commercial enterprises be carried out. When an individual or partnership builds up a business to a certain point, development and advancement is impossible until a corporation or joint stock company is organized, under the laws of the state. A corporation is simply a convenience, by which the highest possible attainment is reached in the business world.

Being artificial and more or less restricted in its operations and methods, it is excessively sensitive to financial and industrial conditions, and while its use as an instrument of injustice must never be countenanced, the utmost care must be exercised in correcting abuses. Most of the factories and big business concerns in Paducah are corporations, all the newspapers are corporations, and most social and religious institutions are corporations.

Some designing individuals have used corporations as a blind, created trusts, and violated the civil and moral laws, but it is the "God made men" of whom Mr. Bryan speaks, who are guilty of these outrages. Wreaking vengeance on a senseless, artificial, impalpable name, which is a corporation, is Quixotic. If abuses have sprung up under our co-operative system, let us with moderation and calmness correct the abuses, and not the system.

which are but the means through which energetic individuals work to a legitimate end, but by provisions such as the president now is advocating—let Mr. Bryan joust with windmills if he must. Federal supervision with ample powers vested in the executive to forestall endless litigation and the repeal of the harsh provisions of the Sherman anti-trust law, are needed to restore confidence to the business world.

WHY IT WILL BE MR. TAFT.

Close students of the situation are persistently claiming that if the Chicago convention does not nominate Taft, the honor will be forced upon Roosevelt, says the Detroit Free Press (Ind.).

No question is raised as to the good faith or veracity of the president in repeatedly declining to consider or accept another term. But it is recalled that at the Philadelphia convention he as positively refused to take a second place on the ticket and was compelled to yield because of the overwhelming sentiment in his favor.

Seldom in the history of the country have the people been so thoroughly aroused and so determined to exercise their right to control as now. They are unalterably committed to the distinguished policies of the administration. The masses approve the reforms in progress and demand that they be carried to a successful conclusion.

No opposition can balk this determination. Cherished and revered as is the national tradition against third-termism, it is a question whether it might not prevail if the people saw danger to their cause in contending for the proper regulation of the great special interests that came so dangerously near dominating the country.

This would be a deplorable departure, but those making it would seek to justify it as a political war measure in final extremity.

Each day emphasizes the fact that Taft is far-and-away in the lead as a candidate. The primary source of his strength is in the fact that he endorses the administration policies and would continue them until the needed reforms are established.

Because of this he is the logical candidate and in nothing can his fitness be challenged. He has great intellectual vigor and moral stamina. He is progressive, but sure-footed. He has courage, dignity, independence and love of justice. He has a judicial mind and the spirit of compromise. He is a man of mighty force, but impetuous in neither speech nor action.

This estimate of the man is based upon what he has done as citizen, lawyer, judge, statesman and diplomat. He has been called to the gravest responsibilities and the most delicate adjustments of national and international magnitude encountered since we became a world power. Not a failure mars the record. In all his undertakings he inspires confidence and reliance. Success is his attendance because of his deserts. As the people become familiar with his sturdy character and ingrained honesty, they turn to him as the man of the hour.

This is why Michigan is for him; why he is quoted as the leading candidate even in Illinois and Wisconsin and in the entire northwest; why he has a large and growing support in conservative New England and is constantly gaining throughout the country. Down in their hearts the people want him.

If the privilege of securing him to carry on what the president has done is withheld, stranger things have happened than would be a convention stampede to Roosevelt.

In this possibility is revealed the folly of the powers on Wall street and of the great opposing corporations in fighting Taft. They fix their purpose of the masses to have their demands in the premises through the administration of one man or the other. They are a hopeless minority fighting a hopeless cause and aggravating an unconquerable enemy to greater exertion. If the choice should be forced upon Roosevelt, it would be received by him as a commission and a command to prosecute his reforms. How vigorously and relentlessly, those who know the president can comprehend. Taft would move judicially and judiciously with the least possible friction and the least disturbance to the business and prosperity of the country.

He is the right man to take up the work where it is and complete it with impartial regard for the rights of all.

THE MYSTERY

CHAPTER VII.

BY the following afternoon Dr. Trendon reported his patient as quite recovered.

"Starved for water," proffered the surgeon. "Tissues fairly dried out. Soaked him up. Fed him broth. Put him to sleep. He's all right. Just wakes up to eat. Then off again like a two-year-old. Wonderful constitution."

"The gentleman wants to know if he can come on deck, sir," saluted an orderly.

"Waked up, eh? Come on, Barnett. Help me boost him on deck."

The two officers disappeared to return in a moment arm in arm with Ralph Slade.

Nearly twenty-four hours' rest and skillful treatment had done wonders. He was still a trifle weak and uncertain, was still a little glad to lean on the arm of his companions, but his eye was bright and alert and his hollow cheeks mounted a slight color. This, with the clothes lent him by Barnett, transformed his appearance and led Captain Parkinson to congratulate himself that he had not obeyed his first impulse to send the castaway for ward with the men.

The officers pressed forward.

"Mighty glad to see you out." "Hope you've got your pins under you again."

"Old man, I'm mighty glad we came along."

The chorus of greeting was hearty enough, but the journalist barely paid the courtesy of acknowledgment. His eye swept the horizon eagerly until it rested on the cloud of volcanic smoke billowing up across the setting sun. A sigh of relief escaped him.

"Where are we?" he asked Barnett. "I mean since you picked me up." How long ago was that anyway?

"Yesterday," replied the navigating officer. "We've stood off and on looking for some of our men."

"Then that's the same volcano?" Barnett laughed softly. "Well, they aren't quite holding a caucus of volcanoes down in this country. One like that is enough."

But Slade brushed the remark aside. "Hend for it!" he cried excitedly. "We may be in time! There's a man on that island!"

"A man?" "Another?" "Not Billy Edwards?" "Not some of our boys?" Slade stared at them bewildered.

"Hold on," interposed Dr. Trendon authoritatively. "What's his name?" he inquired of the journalist.

"Darrow," replied the latter. "Percy Darrow. Do you know him?"

"Who in Kamchatka is Percy Darrow?" demanded Forsythe.

"Why, he's the assistant. It's a long story."

"Of course it's a long story. There's a lot we want to know," interrupted Captain Parkinson. "Quartermaster, head for the volcano yonder. Mr. Slade, we want to know where you came from, and why you left the schooner and who Percy Darrow is. And there's dinner, so we'll adjourn to the messroom and hear what you can tell us. But there's one thing we're all anxious to know—how came you in the dory which we found and left on the Laughing Lass later than two days ago?"

"I haven't set eyes on the Laughing Lass for—well, I don't know how long, but it's five days anyway, perhaps more," replied Slade.

"You stared at him incredulously. "Oh, I see," he burst out suddenly. "There were twin dories on the schooner. The other one's still there, I suppose. Did you find her on the stern davit?"

"That's it, then. You see, when I left."

Captain Parkinson's raised hand checked him. "If you will be so good, Mr. Slade, let us have it all at once, after mess."

At table the young officers at a sharp hint from Dr. Trendon conversed on indifferent subjects until the journalist had paraken heartily of what the physician allowed him. Slade ate with keen appreciation.

"I tell you, that's good," he sighed, when he had finished. "Real, live, after dinner coffee too. Why, gentlemen, I haven't eaten a civilized meal, with all the trimmings, for over two years. Doctor, do you think a little of the real stuff would hurt me? It's a pretty dry yearning."

"One glass," growled the surgeon, "no more."

"Scotch highball, then," voted Slade, "the higher the better."

The steward brought a tall glass with ice, in which the newcomer mixed his drink. Then for quite a minute he sat silent, staring at the table, his fingers aimlessly rubbing into spots of wetness the water beads as they gathered on the outside of his glass. Suddenly he looked up.

"I don't know how to begin," he confessed. "It's too confoundedly improbable. I hardly believe it myself, now that I'm sitting here in human clothes, surrounded by human beings. Old Scrubbs and the nigger and Handy Solomon and the professor and the chest and the—well, they were real enough when I was caught in the mess. But I warn you are not going to believe me, and hanged if I blame you a bit."

"We've seen marvels ourselves in the last few days," encouraged Captain Parkinson.

"Unimportant adventures never gave the impression of an important event becoming entangled in fact."

Impatiently. "Just begin at the beginning and let it go at that."

Slade slipped at his glass reflectively. "Well," said he at length, "the best way to begin is to show you how I happened to be mixed up in it at all."

The officers unconsciously relaxed into attitudes of greater ease. Overhead the lamps swayed gently to the swell. The dull throb of the screw pulsed. Stewards clad in white moved noiselessly, filling the glasses, deferentially striking lights for the smokers, clearing away the last dishes of the repast.

"I'm a reporter by choice and a detective by instinct," began Slade, with startling abruptness. "Furthermore, I'm pretty well off. I'm what they call a free lance, for I have no regular desk on any of the journals. I generally turn my stuff in to the Star because they treat me well. In return it is pretty well understood between us that I'm to use my judgment in regard to 'stories' and that they'll stand back of me for expenses. You see, I've been with them quite awhile."

He looked around the circle as though in appeal to the comprehension of his audience. Some of the men nodded. Others slipped from their glasses or drew at their cigars.

"I loaf around here and there in the world, having a good time traveling, visiting, fooling around. Every once in awhile something interests me. The thing is a sort of instinct. I run it down. If it's a good story, I send it in. That's all there is to it."

He laughed slightly. "You see, I'm a sort of magazine writer in method, but my stuff is newspaper stuff; also the game suits me. That's why I play it. That's why I'm here. I have to tell you about myself this way so you will understand how I came to be mixed up in this Laughing Lass matter."

"I remember," commented Barnett. "That when you came aboard the North Dakota you had a little trouble making Captain Arnold see it."

He turned to the others with a laugh. "He had all kinds of papers of ancient date, but nothing modern—letter from the Star dated five years back, recommendations to everybody on earth except Captain Arnold, certificate of bravery in Apache campaign, bank identifications and all the rest. 'Maybe you're the Star's correspondent and maybe you're not,' said the captain. 'I don't see anything here to prove it.' Slade argued an hour. No go. Remember how you caught him?" he inquired of Slade.

The reporter grinned assent. "After the old man had turned him down good Slade fished down in his war bag and hauled out an old tattered document from an oilskin case. 'Hold on a minute,' said he, 'you old shellback. I've proved to you that I can write and I've proved to you that I have fought, and now here I'll prove to you that I can sail. If writing, fighting and sailing don't fit me adequately to report any war disturbances you'll be antiquated. I shall be a master's certificate. Where did you get it anyway? I never found out."

"Passed as 'fresh water' or the great lakes," replied Slade briefly.

"Well, the spunk and the certificate finished the captain. He was an old square rigger himself in the civil war."

"So much for myself," Slade continued. "As for the Laughing Lass—"

GREAT NORTHERN ROBBERS BUREAU JAIL AT HELENA.
Helena, Mont., March 23.—George Frank Hower and Charles McDonald, charged with having held up the Great Northern railway's Oriental limited last September and rifled the registered mail of $40,000 being transported to a Spokane bank, broke jail early today and are still at liberty.

The men sawed their cell doors, the corridor bars and the bars in a window. Immediately upon discovery of their escape several posses were formed and are now in pursuit. Men answering their description were seen in the southern part of the city making for the mountains.

Conference of Fairbanks Leaders.
The Fairbanks leaders in Kentucky will meet in conference at the Seelbach in Louisville this afternoon for the purpose of discussing plans of unification and the manner of conducting the campaign between now and the state convention. The call for the meeting which has been sent broadcast over the state, was signed by William O. Bradley, United States Senator-elect John W. Yerkes and M. H. Thatcher. John W. Yerkes has written that he would certainly attend the meeting and either he or Senator-elect Bradley will preside. The conference will be behind closed doors, as it is not intended to be a mass-meeting. It was said that many of the Fairbanks followers from out in the state will attend the meeting and that some definite plan of organization will be effected.

Disorderly Resorts.
The conduct of houses of ill fame scattered over the city and their selling liquor without a license was one of the things Mayor Smith was chiefly interested in, although he intended that the investigations should include all forms of law breaking in Paducah.

The detectives were employed when Mayor Smith left Paducah the day of the Republican county convention to purchase a new buggy for his family. Many surmises were indulged in as to the reason for the mayor's departure. Most people thought he went away to have the right to delegate to their leaders the power to say when to strike. They have also the right to use persuasion with all other laborers, who are invited to take their places in order to convince them of the advantage to labor of united action.

"But any resort to violence or other form of lawlessness on behalf of a labor union properly merits and receives the sharpest condemnation from the public."

When asked whether government ownership of railroads, etc., would render disputes between operatives and owners easier to adjust, he said:

Revision of Tariff.

"I think not so. I think we would have the same discussions, the same political controversies. And if we had government ownership of railroads, have you ever thought of the tremendous power that you are putting in the hands of a few men here in Washington? The Lord knows that the powers are sufficiently concentrated here now—so much so, indeed, that it is hard to get the business properly conducted. And you put all the railroads under the direction of man or a set of men, you create a power that may well make you tremble for the safety of the republic."

As to the advisability of a revision of the tariff, Mr. Taft said:

"Speaking for myself and for no one else, I believe that since the passage of the Dingley bill, there has been such a change in the business conditions of the country that it would be wise to revise the schedules of the existing tariff. The sentiment is growing in the Republican party, and no doubt a reasonable plan will be agreed upon."

Defends the President.

"The change is certain to come, and with it those schedules of the tariff which have inequalities and are excessive, will be readjusted."

Mr. Taft was particularly emphatic in resenting the intimation that President Roosevelt was in any way responsible for the recent panic, and said:

"The course of the administration has been directed against such organized capital as was violating the statutes of the United States, and no other."

"The president has condemned the law-breakers. He has put the fear of the law into their hearts. The business men of the community as a whole are honest, and their methods are sound. The president has never thought otherwise. He has simply made his fight for lawful business methods."

Break Solid South.

"Are you an advocate of a greater navy?" Mr. Taft was asked.

"I believe that our policy in the Philippines has increased the necessity for a greater navy. An adequate navy is the greatest guarantee of peace that we could possibly have."

A navy commensurate with our resources and commensurate with our coast line, and commensurate with the number of dependencies we have, and commensurate with our population, and commensurate with our influence as a world power."

Speaking of the coming political struggle, Mr. Taft said:

"I believe that nothing that could happen in the politics of this country would work greater advantage to the country at large and to the south particularly, than the breaking up of what has been properly known as the solid south."

"It takes a long time to convince the white people of the south, intelligent, clear-headed and energetic as they are, that this cry of negro domination is merely for the purpose of solidifying their vote on the Democratic side and has no real justification in fact."

drinks. The Pinkertons said they tried to get into the game again Sunday, but were informed that the house was full. They reported and then went back, but couldn't get in. This led them to surmise that they had been tipped off, or the proprietor was suspicious of their persistence.

When the officers arrived, Bailey and Solicitor Campbell went up stairs when the proprietor responded to repeated pounding on the door, while the mayor stood at the front door and Moore and Gourelux guarded the rear. Only two men and the paraphernalia were found.

rived some thought that was the reason he left. The mayor didn't confide in anyone, and the work of the detectives, completely dumfounded those on whom warrants were served today. It was the most successful crusade ever undertaken in Paducah.

Mayor Smith said he had warned everybody suspected of law violations, through the press, his message to the council, and through the police, that he would have the law enforced. He saw that they did not heed his warnings even after some of them were arrested and fined. "Now I shall have to the line," said the mayor this morning. "Another warning would be disregarded just as these have been and I shall simply do my duty in each case, when the court finishes with the defendants."

The Kentucky avenue women are in the worst plight. They have been arrested and indicted before, and when presented in the circuit court, Judge Reed warned them off Kentucky avenue, and issued a permanent injunction against disorderly houses. They will now appear before him for violating the injunction and contempt of court, and the court has the most drastic authority to punish contempt.

GEN. STOESEL BEGINS TERM IN FORTRESS.
St. Petersburg, March 23.—Gen. Gen. Stoessel, who yesterday began to serve ten years in prison for cowardice and treason in surrendering Port Arthur to the Japanese, occupies a room in the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul adjoining that of Rear Admiral Nebogatoff, who is serving a like sentence for surrender to the Japanese at the Sea of Japan.

The grounds are about 20 feet square, and over 2000 a little garden, where the officers are permitted to promenade. Stoessel's family has received permission to furnish his cell. The officers in the fortress run a private mess of their own, and to this Gen. Stoessel has been admitted.

The general's transfer to the fortress yesterday was unexpected. He persisted until the very last in hoping that the emperor would pardon him. The fortress officials were not prepared for his reception. There was no room available, and to secure one they were forced to dispossess two officers who had served under Admiral Nebogatoff.

Ollie James' Red Kerchief.
(Washington Correspondence of Boston Herald.)

That towering statesman, the Hon. Ollie James, of Kentucky, about whom some wag has said that he is designed by nature for "picking bananas or moving pianos" is next to the most lurid members of the Sixtieth congress. Representative Harry Maynard, of Virginia, the sponsor of the Jamestown exposition, takes the first prize. He appeared on the floor of the house the other day in a spectacular vest which made the electric lights pale into insignificance. No ordinary garment was this. The Hon. Bourke Cockran, who dresses always sedately, like a monk, turned faint, and the Hon. Billy Sulzer, of Tammany Hall, when he beheld it mournfully covered up his own green striped waistcoat, the pride of his heart, buried his face in his toll-stained hands and wept like a child. The Maynard vest stood out in that assemblage of solons like a poster ad in front of a variety theater. It was purple and pink, and yellow, and blue, and ecru, all mixed up together. Now, Maynard is built on the bay-window plan of architecture, and such a vest as his gets all the publicity in the world. He sauntered to a prominent place in the center aisle, thrust his thumbs in his vest and permitted the world to loomed up. He, too, strode down the center aisle. As he arrived beside Maynard he reached into his hip pocket and pulled out a flaming red bandanna handkerchief, one of the good old "Kaintuck" sort.

"For goodness sake, gentlemen," asked Representative Lawrence, of Massachusetts, "what are you doing trying to flag a train?"

Auto Attacked By Wolves.
Cheyenne, Wyo., March 23.—Attacked by a large pack of timber wolves, the drivers of the Italian car Just in the New York-to-Paris automobile race, were forced to use rifles and pistols Thursday night near Spring Valley, to drive the hungry animals away.

The car was creeping along over a muddy road when the cry of wolves was heard behind them, and the animals, growing bolder each minute, surrounded the car. They were not frightened by theooting of the horn on the machine, nor did they fear the lights that were flashed on them. They snatched at the rubber tires and mudguards, and then the weapons were brought into use.

Cowboys picked up pelts of twenty wolves slain by the Italians.

The West Kentucky Coal company finished the unloading of 250 car loads of coal into barges today. It has taken just 26 days to unload the coal and would have been done in less time but for the rising and falling of the river. This coal will be taken down the Mississippi to the mouth of the Arkansas river, where it will be used for coal-burning

JAPAN SHREWD DIPLOMAT.

Russian View of Invitation to the American Fleet.

St. Petersburg, March 23.—The invitation extended to the American fleet by Japan is applauded as a shrewd move in diplomacy. The Bourse Gazette, speaking of this, says:

"America naturally could not refuse the invitation, yet its acceptance will serve as a public attestation of the peaceful intentions of Japan, which is especially needed at the present time in view of her tottering finances and low credit. The invitation has a touch of the picturesque—tomorrow we may fight; today be our guests."

War an Impossibility.

Paris, March 23.—The Journal Des Debats, in an editorial today, interprets the Japanese invitation to the American fleet as certain evidence that war between these two countries is not a possibility. In the opinion of the paper, Japan realizes that there is ample room for her emigrants in Korea and Manchuria.

The Diet of Royalty.

The emperor of Austria makes the plainness of his fare something of a hobby, attributing to his long life and good health. Milk porridge for breakfast, a little cold poultry and cheese for luncheon, and an equally simple menu for dinner satisfy this emperor of Austria and king of Hungary.

Scotch broth is the only soup for which he cares.

The kaiser is somewhat uncertain in his demands, although, as a rule, his wants are simple. The German royal kitchen is one of the best equipped and up-to-date in the world, so that unexpected demands are easily met. His majesty's healthy appetite is usually satisfied with two or three plain dishes, a small quantity of wine, and a glass of beer. The national food—sauerkraut—has a firm friend in the emperor. One of his favorite breakfast foods is macaroni with hashed liver. The empress prefers English cooking, roast beef being her favorite dish.

A favorite dish of the king and queen of Italy was invented by their cook, and consists of artichoke fried and supplemented by the crests and livers of cocks.

Roast suckling pig is extremely popular on the Russian imperial table, as well as chicken and veal cutlets. The czar is especially pleased when his cook prepares a dish known as vyanek, which is composed of small pastries doubled and stuffed with either forcemeat, cabbage or plum jam, the whole being covered with rich cream.—Harper's Weekly.

Origin of the Elevator.

The elevator originated in Central Europe. The earliest mention of the elevator is made in a letter of Napoleon I. addressed to his wife, the Archduchess Maria Louise. He writes to her that when in Schoenbrunn, then the summer residence of the Austrian emperor, near Vienna, he used the "chaise volante" (flying chair) in that castle which had been constructed for Empress Maria Theresa. It consisted of a small square room sumptuously furnished with hangings of red silk suspended by strong ropes with counter weights, so that it could be pulled up or let down with great ease in a shaft built for the purpose about 1760.

Sleep

Sleep is nature's rebuilding period, when the energy used by the brain, muscles and organs is renewed. If you lose sleep, your system is robbed of the strength sleep should give. Continued loss of sleep multiplies this loss until you become a physical wreck. Dr. Miles' Nervine quiets the irritated nerves and brings refreshing, invigorating sleep. Nervine contains no opiates, and therefore leaves no bad after-effects.

"For over two years I suffered untold agonies; my friends thought I was going crazy. I could not sleep nor rest at all. I tried different doctors, but failed to find relief. My head would ache all the time; I was like one drunk; could not concentrate my mind, and was so restless and worried that sleep was out of the question. After taking one bottle of Dr. Miles' Nervine I felt wonderfully changed. I am now on my third bottle and am gaining all the time. I can lie down and sleep like a child, and am able to do my work."

MASTER JAMES E. ENGLISH, OF LOUISVILLE COLONELS.

Paducah Youngster Has Picture Published in Courier-Journal Sunday.

The Sunday Courier-Journal printed a good picture of Master James E. English, of Paducah, who will be the mascot for the Colonels, Louisville league baseball team this year. The little fellow was in full uniform with a catcher's glove on his hand and a bat thrown across his shoulder. Manager Burke, of the Louisville team, and J. E. English, of Paducah, father of the lad, are close friends, having been associated together in St. Louis several years ago.

CLEOPATRA'S VASE FOUND.
Beautiful Relic Bearing a Portrait of Julius Caesar Unearthed.

Philadelphia.—Discoveries in the field of Egyptian archaeology, including a beautiful vase of marvelous workmanship, which inscriptions tend to show to have been the property of Cleopatra, and upon which is painted a portrait of Julius Caesar in the costume of a Greek god, have been made by the Randall MacIver expedition of the University of Pennsylvania, which has been at work at Anibeh, a famous religious shrine of the ancient Egyptians, since last November.

News of the discoveries reached this city a few days ago in a letter from Dr. MacIver, who is curator of the Egyptian section of the museum of science and art at the university, to Eckley B. Cox, chairman of the Egyptian section of the museum.

The announcement of the results attained up to this time by the expedition, which are said to eclipse any finds ever made by expeditions sent out from this country, were made yesterday by Mr. Cox at the museum.

The precious Caesarian vase, which it is expected will rank with the Venus de Milo and the Hermes of Praxiteles as one of the few immortal art legacies left by antiquity to modern civilization, was found in an ancient tomb about a mile north of the city of Anibeh proper, where the tombs of many of the highest nobility of Egypt at the time of the Ptolemies have been unearthed.

Although the discovery of the vase overshadows all else accomplished by the expedition, several other important finds have been made. Five caskets of Roman period have been found. Inscriptions clearing up disputed dates in the twentieth dynasty of the Egyptian kings have been unearthed and between 150 and 200 specimens of pottery, including inscribed water jugs, have been discovered.

PLANT BEDS OF TWO FARMERS SCRAPED.

Marauders Fired Off Pistols After Their Visit—Members Lose Their Plants.

Hopkinsville, March 23.—The first instance of plant bed destruction in Christian county this season is reported from the Honey Grove neighborhood in the eastern portion.

Thursday night a large plant bed on the farm of J. B. Carpenter, the joint property of Mr. Carpenter and a cropper, G. H. Faughn, was completely ruined by being dug up with hoes. After completing their work the marauders fired a number of shots into the air, which were heard by several of the people living in that vicinity and by Mr. Carpenter. Judging from the tracks which were left eight to ten men were in the party.

Both sufferers from this raid are members of the association. Mr. Faughn has been a member of the organization for some time. Recently Mr. Carpenter signed the agreement which is now permitted by the county executive committee whereby he signified his intention of joining the association as soon as the books are reopened. Neither can assign a reason for the destruction.

It Does the Business.
Mr. E. E. Chamberlain, of Clinton, Maine, says of Bucklen's Arnica Salve: "It does the business; I have used it for piles and it cured them. Used it for chapped hands and it cured them. Applied it to an old sore and it healed it without leaving a scar behind." 25c at all druggists.

Paducah People Are Doing All They Can for Fellow Sufferers.

Paducah testimony has been published to prove the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills to others in Paducah who suffer from bad backs and kidney ills. Last any sufferer doubt that the cures made by Doan's Kidney Pills are thorough and lasting, we produce confirmed proof—statements from Paducah people saying that the cures they told of years ago were permanent. Here's a Paducah case:

J. W. Wootan, retired, of 1403 Burnett street, Paducah, Ky., says: "About seven years ago I gave a statement for publication telling of the great merits of Doan's Kidney Pills and what they had done for me after other remedies had failed to even help me. I was at that time a sufferer from backache and kidney trouble of years standing. My rest at night was greatly broken and my health was greatly run down. I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and procured them at DuBois & Co's drug store. I took them as directed and was greatly benefited. This was seven years ago and at this time, February 18, 1907, I think even more highly of this remedy than I did then, as it has stood the test. I most heartily endorse Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

SPECIAL MESSAGE SENT THIS WEEK

On Laws Which the President
Wishes Passed.

Western Business Tell What Caused the Panic and Demand Its Correction.

LEADERS AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

Washington, March 23.—According to an official statement issued from the white house, the president probably will send a message to congress this week containing explicit recommendations concerning the legislation which he feels that congress should enact before the close of the present session.

Although the specific legislation is not mentioned in the statement, it is learned from an authoritative source that it will embody the following:

Currency legislation along the lines of the Aldrich bill.

A new employers' liability law.

A law limiting the power of injunction.

Amendment of the Sherman anti-trust law so as to permit traffic agreements, pooling arrangements and other proper combinations, under governmental restrictions.

The passage of a measure providing for an investigation of the tariff schedules by a commission, preferably consisting of the ways and means committee of the house and the finance committee of the senate, with a view to a revision of the tariff at a special session of congress to be held after March 4, 1909.

Leaders in Conference.

The announcement of the president was made after a lengthy conference at the white house with Senator Aldrich and Representatives Payne and Dalzell. It is believed that for the most part these agreed with the president in his legislative program. There was some difference of opinion as to amending the Sherman anti-trust law, and further conferences on this subject will be held before the president sends in his message.

The leaders in congress feel that there are difficulties in the way of amending the Sherman law for the benefit of the corporations without at the same time granting the demands of organized labor that unions be exempted from prosecution as "combinations in restraint of trade." The president himself is opposed to any enactment that would legalize the practice of boycotting.

The occasion of the president's announcement was a visit paid to him by the following representatives of commercial bodies of the middle west:

Richard C. Hall, chairman, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce; J. V. Farwell, Jr., and Charles J. Wacker, members of the Chicago Association of Commerce; James E. Smith, president of St. Louis Business Men's League; Festus J. Wade, of the executive committee of the St. Louis Business Men's League; H. B. Topping, president of the Kansas City Commercial club, and C. B. Parker and E. M. Clendenning, of the Kansas City Commercial club.

Effects of Panic.

In the statement is embodied the following address made by this delegation:

"Mr. President—The organizations we represent have a membership of about 4,500 business men. In the pursuit of our various lines of business, we come in contact with almost every portion of the country, but especially of the Mississippi valley. We never were in a more prosperous condition than prior to the panic of last fall. Our labor was all employed, our capital profitably invested.

"In a short period these conditions have changed. Certain lines of business are almost stagnant, brought about by the fear of the people as to the stability of some of our institutions. Money has been hoarded—instead of flowing into the ordinary channels of investment, securities and the various commercial interests.

"Two primary causes are responsible for this condition. First, the gross violation of law by some corporations and grafting by some public officials; and, secondly, a deficient currency system, wholly incapable of corresponding to the needs of commerce when fear and uncertainty are engendered into the minds of the masses.

"The starting of this period of unrest and distrust was the exposure brought about by the Insurance investigation in New York, where it was shown that the trustees of corporations acting for millions of our people and representing in assets more than a thousand million dollars, had in some instances used the assets of the corporations in direct violation of law. Following this came the great calamity at San Francisco, almost destroying the sixth great city of the nation, entailing a loss of $700,000,000, impoverishing the citizens as well as the insurance companies.

Grafting High Finance.

"Then on the heels of this disaster we find the public officials of that city charged with the violation of almost every trust, while the people were battling for existence. We also had the grafting and bribery that was unearthed in at least three other important cities, and finally came the exposure of high finance, manipulation of the assets of great railroads, followed by the conviction of their officials, and also those of large industrial corporations for utter disregard of the laws of the nation and the state. When these things are considered no one can express surprise that the confidence of the people should have been shaken.

"To you, Mr. President, we accord the credit due for compelling a respect of the law by the great and the small alike.

"We ask you, Mr. President, to indicate to congress the corrective measures you deem it necessary to take."

The president's statement closes with the following words:

"A subcommittee, consisting of Messrs. Hall, Wacker, Smith and Topping, called on the president at the executive office this morning, and they were informed by the president that he would probably communicate to congress next week explicit recommendations concerning the legislation needed."

Rank Foolishness.

"When attacked by a cough or a cold, or when your throat is sore, it is rank foolishness to take any other medicine than Dr. King's New Discovery," says C. O. Eldridge, of Empire, Ga. "I have used New Discovery seven years and I know it is the best remedy on earth for coughs and colds, croup and all throat and lung troubles. My children are subject to croup, but New Discovery quickly cures every attack." Known the world over as the king of throat and lung remedies. Sold under guarantee at all druggists. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

Clarksville Loses Factory.

Clarksville, Tenn., March 23.—Mr. Harvey Turnley, manager of the Merriweather branch of the American Tobacco company, today announced that the plant would be closed in this city on April 1, indefinitely. The factory employs about 150 hands and they will go to Nashville, where a factory will be opened. The payroll of this concern amounts to nearly $1,000 per week and the closing of the plant will be a serious blow to the business interest of the city. Mr. Turnley gave out no reason for the closing of the plant. The plant was operated for about eleven years as an independent, but was taken over by the Continental Tobacco company about four years ago and a year later the American Tobacco company and the Continental consolidated. The factory is located on Front street and turns out twist tobacco. Mr. Harvey Turnley will have charge of the Nashville plant.

If a man could see himself as others see him he might be able to see his finish.

The smaller the bribe the greater seems to be the disgrace.

ENTHUSIASM AT MAGDALENA BAY

Jackies of Big Fleet in Splendid Condition.

Illuminated Chunks of Steel Take Flight Through Night and Persist in Hitting Bull's Eye.

SHIPS ARE HUNTING IN THREES

Los Angeles, Cal., March 23.—Enthusiastic jackies are sitting up nights down in Magdalena Bay in order to annoy canvas targets with illuminated shells and big battleships guided by dazzling searchlights, are racing across the ranges in order to humor Admiral Evans' crack shell tossers in their amusement.

It is an impressive scene, according to Los Angeles men who returned from a trip to the scene of action in the gunboat Nellie.

"It was the sight of a lifetime to see the show," said G. C. Keeney, removing some cotton from his ear. "However, night is the time to witness the great things. Tracer shells were used and we could see them from the time they were hurled from the mouth of the guns, across the range like balls of fire, to smash through the targets."

"It was a sight to see the big illuminated chunks of steel strike the water and then leap from 200 to 300 feet high. Shooting across the surface at such a low pitch one would expect them to skip, but they only took the one big jump and one or two feeble hops thereafter."

"One of the most impressive things outside of the fact that the shells persisted in knocking out the little black bulls-eye was the report of the 12-inch guns. It began with a rumble and changed in volume and tone for all the world like a train running over a bridge and through a canyon. It was pretty good music for a civilian's ear. There are little hills around Magdalena Bay a thousand feet high, and these fling back the roaring across the water."

"The battleships hunt in threes. The craft, primed for war, steam across the course with searchlights on the bunch of four connected targets, the broadside guns bark all the way across, and the way those gunners bunch the disk and never miss the target bodies is a marvel."

"Then the fighting ships turn and run close to the targets, using the searchlights to make a record of the score, and the repair launch runs in and patches up the ragged canvas. "In the daytime the effect is entirely different. One sees little smoke and can not see the shells travel save after they strike."

"All the vessels of the fleet are coaled. The men of the fleet are in a splendid condition."

"The officers encourage sport. We witnessed some of it on the Connecticut. Several ring matches were pulled off the evening we were there. They were the real thing. There are men in the fleet whom professionals would not care to meet. During the evening, one of the men with the six-ounce gloves took the count."

"I asked an officer if Admiral Evans encouraged this vigorous form of sport. He grinned and said that the admiral, when able, took in the events."

"This beautiful morning I can feel the sap rising."

"Perhaps it's only softening of the brain, my dear fellow."

SENATOR TILLMAN IS STRICKEN.

South Carolina's Spectacular Representative in Upper House.

Columbia, S. C., March 23.—United States Senator Benjamin R. Tillman is seriously ill at his home at Trenton, S. C. Physicians say he is suffering with a nervous attack due to overwork.

The senator was stricken Thursday night.

He complained of the heat and extreme nervousness.

The old numbness and tingling of the left side, which troubled the senator three years ago, have returned, but their severity has lessened in the last twenty-four hours.

He always patronizes that one restaurant.

Who? Stinjay? Yes, there are waitresses there, you know.

But he doesn't care for the girls.

No, but you don't have to tip girls.

SCHOOL NOTES

On account of a conflict with the art exhibit "The Boom-Boom," the High school play, will be given Monday night instead of Friday night. The stage will be decorated Saturday, and several minor repairs made for the play. The stage lights have been elevated a little, and give better light. Several pieces of local art will be exhibited, which add to the interest of the pictures.

T. R. God-Sent, Says Bishop. Philadelphia, March 23.—Touching on national affairs in receiving into full membership eight young men at today's session of the Philadelphia conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, Bishop Cranston, of Washington, D. C., said:

"Ten more years of the same old regime that has affected this country and this republic would have gone to destruction. If ever God Almighty summoned a man to a special mission it was when he called Theodore Roosevelt to the leadership of the moral sentiment of the country. Theodore Roosevelt has called the people to distinguish between right and wrong, between good politics and statesmanship. All the people want is a leader, and they have the leader in a man who occupies the presidential chair in Washington."

"What a ring there was in the last message against corporation power and rule. I am looking for another message. I expect it soon."

News was received in the city yesterday of the death of Mrs. Leonard Block, Jr., who died Saturday midnight at her home in East St. Louis, Illinois, from tuberculosis. Messrs. John and Frank Block left yesterday to attend the funeral, which will be held at Ridgeway, Ill.
